

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

Partnership working is often the most effective way of providing good strong, joined up solutions to issues that affect communities. North Cumbria Community Safety Partnership (CSP) is an example of how public agencies can work together to show leadership in tackling problems within our communities.

This has been another year of excellent partnership working between all of those involved in the North Cumbria Community Safety Partnership (CSP).

One of the biggest developments this year has been the Carlisle Hub. This is based within the Civic Centre in Carlisle and was launched in September. The hub allows various agencies, including the police, housing associations, various council departments and others to work side by side and makes joint problem solving easier.

There have been some excellent problem solving training at sessions held in both Penrith and Carlisle. These were funded by the CSP and the feedback from those attending (including myself) was that the training was very worthwhile and enjoyable. The training will be useful towards developing relationships within the hub in Carlisle and working towards a similar project in Eden.

The CSP is a statutory body which works to address crime and disorder. Along with CSPs in the West and South of the county we work to make our county safer for residents.

Anti Social Behaviour, Domestic and Sexual Violence, Alcohol and Substance Misuse along with Violent Crime and Reducing Re-offending will again be our main focus. Alongside this we will also work with partners on Hate Crime, Child Sex Exploitation and Modern Day Slavery.

We will continue to work with the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner, who provide financial support, and continue to undertake the good work in making our county a safer place over the coming year.
